PROTECTION OF CLAIMS

Against Railroads and Prison Reform Will Be Added to Unfinished Business of Legislature.

Austin, Texas, Aug. 17.—Six subjects were submitted by the governor for a fourth special session, to begin tomorrow morning at 8:30. Four are matters which failed during the session ending tonight and two are entirely new. The four subjects resubmitted are the car shed bill, spider bill, bill of lading measure and the general insurance topic. They have been threshed out at length during the session expiring tonight.

The two new subjects are penitentiary reform and the protection of unsecured claims against railroads emerging from receivership. The bills have been prepared in every instance and everything is in readiness.

Howard et al is still on trial, the argument probably being concluded this afternoon. This case has been on trial since Monday. Judge Gardner being recused, Judge P. N. Springer is presiding as special judge.

The Grand Leader

M. D. Salmon Dead.

Mr. M. D. Salmon, the postmaster, merchant and prominent citizen of Northern was ordered sold on September 15. It is the road sought to be reached in the very first subject in the governor's proclamation. There are thousands of dollars of just unsecured claims, including final court judgment, pending against the International & Great Northern, and they could be repudiated in the reorganization unless some new law intervenes. It is up to the special session to enact the new law by the necessary two-thirds vote with the emergency clause attached, otherwise it will be absolutely useless, for the law would not become effective until ninety days after adjournment. If it failed to secure the necessary two-thirds vote and contained the emergency clause.

The new session starts at 8:30 in the morning, the earliest hour of the present session. The governor evidently desired an early start and plenty of action.

Friday Night the Date.

On tomorrow (Friday) evening, on the lawn near the Christian church the Ladies of Section 6 of the Ladies' Aid Society will serve ice cream and cake.
